Come Today

Instead of Tomorrow.

We advise our friends to come to town today if possible instead of tomorrow. Christmas eve is always a crush, it'll be worse than ever this year. Our great 1-4 Off Clothing Sale has crowded our house for the past week. Every overcoat at 1-4 off, any suit, except black and blues, at 1-4 off and 1-4 off any odd pant in the entire stock. Consider this and you'll know we'll be rushed. Christmas eve.

J. H. Anderson & Co.

We Have a Complete Line of Winter Goods

At prices that will interest you. We carry a large assortment of

Leather & Duck Leggings

Of all kinds and can give you any size. Our Stock of

HORSE BLANKETS

Is the largest in this section. We have Single blankets from $1.00 up. In the way of GOOD HORSE BLANKETS we have something that will interest you. It is the "No-Tear" blanket and it won't tear.

Our Water-Proof Horse Covers

Are the best on the market and are guaranteed to give satisfaction. No investment you can make will pay half as large returns as the money you put in a blanket and water-proof cover for your horse. They will keep him in good shape and save you in feed alone many times over what they cost.

Although we have had a very large trade on we still have an assortment and at prices that are the wonder with everyone. We keep only the very best, makes, such as "Chase's and Strook's."

HEAVY INSURANCE

Carried by the Late Jno. D. Elliott, of Owensboro.

Mr. John D. Elliott, who died suddenly at Owensboro Sunday night, held $76,000 of life insurance and had contracted for $25,000 more to be delivered Monday. Of the insurance in force $50,000 is said to be of the first kind. The second premium on a $10,000 policy was paid by a friend Saturday while Mr. Elliott lay ill. The insurance applied for and to be delivered yesterday was in the Provident Savings Life Assurance Association. Efforts were made by friends of Mr. Elliott to pay the premiums on the policies ordered, but J. W. Carter and Sam Castleman, local managers of the Provident, refused to deliver the policies when they learned of Mr. Elliott's death, and contend that the policies have no force, since not delivered. Suit may be brought to enforce this insurance.

Mr. Elliott had carried $26,000 in the Mutual Benefit of New Jersey and the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company for a number of years. The "flyers" were placed as follows: Equitable Life Assurance Society, $20,000; United States Life, $20,000; National Life Insurance Company, $10,000.—Times.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

Elopers Married in Springfield, Tenn., Tuesday.

A double wedding of young people living near Madisonville took place at the Commercial Hotel in Springfield, Tenn., Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The contracting parties were: W. M. Blue and Miss Della Turley and Walter Turley and Miss Renice Crowley. Esq. J. I. Holman, the much-married magistrate, performed the ceremony. The couples returned home Tuesday night.

OUNSWEE CLUB

Pleasantly Entertained By Miss Jean McKee.

Miss Jean McKee entertained the Ounswee Club Wednesday evening at her home on South Main St. This was the first of a series of Holiday entertainments that promise to make the season an unusual ggy one in society, especially of the younger set. Miss McKee makes a model hostess and her entertainment was a very pleasant affair.

Worsham-Tucker.

Geo. L. Worsham and Miss Ada E. Tucker were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, near Carl.

Butler-Simpson.

Lawrence C. Butler and Miss Rosa Simpson, of near Oak Grove, were married Tuesday, at Ringgold, Tenn.

FOWLER'S BANQUET

Was a Great Success in Every Way.

Covers Laid For Fifty-two and Numerous Responses To Toasts.

Judge W. T. Fowler's banquet to his Bible class and about thirty guests Monday night was a pronounced success. The menu was elaborate and was served in six courses. Capt. Whitlow superintended the banquet in person and there was not a hitch anywhere in the program from 8 to 11:30. Judge Fowler as toastmaster proved to be a genius in that line. He was ever ready with a pleasant and appropriate send-off for each speaker and was especially happy in all he did and did.

Dr. Frank Stites was the first speaker and his subject "How is This?" was handled in an entertaining speech, abounding in good points.

Mr. Robert Cook, the handsome young county assessor, scraped the sky with a fine piece of oratory on "Down in Dixie," in which he said Kentucky was the best country under the sun.

Mr. T. N. Hazell in discussing "The New Woman," displayed much thought and his language was eloquent and ornate.

Mr. J. Orville Goode, with the subject "Where is Fancy Bred," answered the question most eloquently and entertainingly.

Mr. Ira L. Smith, whose subject was "Remarks," made his remarks in the form of an original poem that made quite a hit.

Mr. Thos. C. Underwood discussed "Cabbages and Kings" in a humorous vein and added much to his reputation as a most entertaining post-prandial orator.

Mayor Jouett Henry, although he claimed that his speech was impromptu, proved himself an all round expert as an after-dinner talker.

Mr. Chas. M. Meacham next turned up with a few incongruous and desultory observations. "Micawber" was his theme.

Dr. W. L. Nourse was the last speaker of the evening and his remarks on "What a Young Man Needs," were timely and ended with a plea for christianity.

The banquet ended with a benediction by Dr. Nourse.

THE FOX SALE.

Satisfactory Prices Realized For Stock.

The closing out sale of Mr. W. G. Fox, of Herndon, was held last Friday, and satisfactory prices were realized. Six head of fine horses were sold. Lela Elkin, by Black Alcione, dam Lady Easter, sold for $255; Minnie Fox, full sister to above, sold for $360. A. S. Thompson, of Paducah, bought both. Mr. Fox is preparing to move into the city next week.

RECEIPTS GOOD.

Heavy Sales of the Loose Weed This Week.

Tobacco sales on the floor Tuesday were heavy and prices were satisfactory, being fully up to last week's quotations for the loose weed. On account of the holidays there were no sales on the breaks. Cash receipts continue to increase.

MIXED UP FAMILY.

Mr. J. T. Owen and Miss Eulah Mitchell were married Thursday near Sinking Fork. The groom's father, a widower, and the bride's mother, a widow, were married some time ago.

Jewelry enough to cost thousands of dollars could be placed. Such a display would be vulgar, however.

One or two of these beautiful DIAMOND RINGS will prove sufficiently attractive and stamp the wearer as a personage of good taste.

We are showing a charming assortment of Single and Combination Stone Rings exquisitely set. The designs are of this season's production and are remarkably handsome. Prices range from $5.00 to $25.00.

Our 18k Rings

Are not the "Up-to-Date" kind, but the old fashioned 18k, the same we have been selling for 30 years. They are not 10 to 14k stamped 18k, as many are. If you want the genuine quality, not only in Rings, but in Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, Cut Glass, Opera Glasses, Fine Umbrellas, Clocks, Novelties, Etc., we can supply you at uniformly low prices.

CHRISTMAS TRADE.

Usual Big Crowd On the Streets Wednesday.

The merchants who had properly advertised their wares all did a rushing business Wednesday, and the crowd in the city was so large that even those who never advertise caught some of the overflow trade. Hundreds of extra salesmen were employed and the Christmas trade was enormous. In fact the volume of business for the whole week was entirely satisfactory.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that on December 10th, 1902, the Mayor and Board of Council of the city of Hopkinsville, Ky., passed and approved an ordinance which is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

ORDINANCE.

Whereas, it is deemed desirable that certain territory lying on the south side of Hopkinsville, Ky., between the Palmyra road and the Cox Mill road be annexed to the city of Hopkinsville;

It is therefore ordained by the Board of Council of the city of Hopkinsville:

1st. That upon its own motion certain territory lying south of the corporate limits of the city of Hopkinsville, between the Palmyra road and the Cox Mill road, consisting of about six (6) acres, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the center of the Cox Mill road opposite the corner post between the lands of M. F. Crenshaw and J. B. Trice; thence with said line S. 12° E. 1/2 mile to 14 links; thence S. 12° W. 13 poles and 12 links with said Trice's line, to the corner between said Crenshaw and T. D. Moore; thence S. 75° E. 6 1/2 poles to Virginia street where the corporate line now crosses said street; thence S. 80° W. 89 poles with the city line to the beginning, be annexed to, and included in the corporate limits of the city of Hopkinsville.

2nd. The Clerk of the Board of Council is hereby ordered and directed in publishing and advertising this ordinance to give notice that proceedings will be instituted in the name of and on behalf of the city of Hopkinsville in the Christian Circuit Court for the purpose of annexing the territory described in the next preceding section and in including same within the corporate limits of the city of Hopkinsville.

Adopted Dec 10th, 1902
CHAS. S. JACKSON, Clerk.
Approved Dec 10th, 1902
JOSEPH HENRY, Mayor.

NOTICE.

In pursuance of the foregoing ordinance, notice is hereby given that within thirty (30) days after the adoption, publication and advertisement of said ordinance and notice a petition will be filed in the Christian Circuit Court in the name and on behalf of the city of Hopkinsville. The object of which petition is to annex the territory described in the above ordinance to, and include same within the corporate limits of the city of Hopkinsville and in said petition there will be set out the passage, publication and advertisement of said ordinance, the object and purpose thereof, together with the metes and bounds of the territory which is proposed to be annexed to the city of Hopkinsville and said petition will contain a prayer asking for a judgment of the court authorizing said Board of Council to annex said territory aforesaid.

This December 10th, 1902.
CHAS. S. JACKSON,
Clerk of the Board of Council of the city of Hopkinsville, Ky.

LABOR IN BERLIN.

Interesting Facts about the Tollers of the German Capital.

The yearly report of the official inspectors on the state of labor in Berlin and its suburbs of Charlottenburg, Schöneberg, and Rixdorf gives the total number of persons employed in factories and workshops within this area during 1901 as 235,762, or about one-tenth of all the persons employed in Prussia. This total includes 152,851 men, 66,440 women, 14,242 young persons of 14 to 16 years of age, and 42 children. Of the women, 23,935 are from 16 to 21 years old and 13,103 over 21 years old.

The total number of those employed in factories and workshops only increased by 1.9 per cent. during 1901, as against 10.5 per cent. in the preceding year. The number of male workers decreased by 1.3 per cent. but there was an increase of 10.1 per cent. in the number of females employed. The dullness of trade has thrown many persons out of work. Inquiries made by the inspectors in 1,236 establishments showed that in the metal and machine industries, the building, carpentering and allied trades there was a decrease from 15,000 to 18,000 in the number of persons employed in October, 1901, as compared with October, 1900. The iron foundries dispensed with about 30 per cent. of their hands. It was calculated that in the month of November about 7,500 factory hands were out of work. Many firms have curtailed the hours of work. The workmen in the machine factories, for example, have earned on an average of 15 per cent. less than usual.

One consequence of the slackness in the labor market has been to render the housing question, especially in the northern and eastern quarters, less acute, since many persons have left Berlin in the hope of finding employment elsewhere. The complaint, however, is made that the suburb of Charlottenburg, which is largely inhabited by the well-to-do classes, puts difficulties in the way of the erection of industrial dwellings.

ANTIQUITY OF TABLECLOTH.

Anglo-Saxons Thought Dinner Tablecloth Was a Necessity.

At a very early period it was customary to spread a cloth or cover upon tables appropriated for holding refreshments, and in the numerous nobled ranks of society we find this practice prevalent almost among all nations, where civilization has polished the manners of the people.

The use of the table cloth among the Romans, according to the Boston Globe, began in the time of the early emperors. Their fabric was fine linen, generally much ornamented, with stripes of gold and purple, and sometimes painted or wrought with gold, decorated at the corners with golden tags.

The use of table linen was very rare in England about the thirteenth century; but we find the Anglo-Saxons, before the Norman conquest, dined with a clean cloth, denominated rood scart, which was by their successors termed drapet; this latter term we find in several instances in "Spencer's Faery Queen," evidently alluding to linen cloths.

In the life of St. Ives we find it mentioned that even a cloth was laid for a poor man. Ducauge relates a singular feudal privilege; "that the Lord was entitled to the table cloth and towel used at the house where He dined," the honor of a frequent visit would surely have made Him no welcome guest when we consider the value of these articles at that time.

The same author relates that a father giving advice to his son most strongly urged him, as a means of future success in life, to have 'his table covered with a clean cloth. And we find there was a violent complaint made against the monks for putting their visitors to a table, not without any cloth certainly, but before a dirty one.

"Frodoke in his 'Antiquities' writes that damask table linen is of very ancient date and quotes La Broquerie for a description of some table cloths used abroad; he says: 'They are four feet in diameter and made round, having rings attached to them, and are, when the dinner is finished, drawn up together like a purse, so that not a crumb of the remnants may be lost.'

A BOOKLOVER'S MISTAKE.

Why He Was Compelled to Marry His Housekeeper.

M. A. Brissan tells a delightful anecdote in one of his series of spirited articles which appear under the heading of "Promenades et Visites." A certain well-known Frenchman, an octogenarian, spent most of his time in his younger days hunting up valuable books among the second-hand bookshops in the neighborhood of the Place St. Michel and the Place Dauphine. He rarely came across a "find," but his fervor never abated. He was a bachelor, and for a housekeeper had an extremely plain woman, who, however, had caught from her master the taste for old books, and occasionally came home with an armful when she had been marketing.

One day the housekeeper appeared with a parcel of books wrapped in paper, and asked her master to look at them. Among the rubbish was a small volume bound in morocco.

"What have you paid for this?" the master gaped, after looking at the title page.

"Thirty sous for the lot," the servant replied. "But, my good woman, this book alone is worth 10,000 francs!" the bibliomane went on, and the moment after regretted the unwise speech. The woman pricked up her ears and in vain did the master try to recall his remark. "I'll give you 100 francs for it," he said.

"But monsieur said just now it was worth 10,000."

"I'll give you 100."

"No, no."

"Seven hundred and fifty."

But it was no use, and, to make a long story short, the master married the book in order to obtain the first edition of "Heptameron" (1559). By this time, says M. Brissan, the wife has gone to a better world, but the comestee and the portrait of Marguerite in the little red morocco volume remain with him.—Paris Messenger.

The Encouraging Ocean.

The last generation of tenants at Leasow castle, in Cheshire, lived half a mile from the sea; now the waves beat against the castle walls. Three hundred years ago they were a mile and a half away. Not far from Leasow castle, washed by the sea, are a few barren acres of land, once an island of which poets sang, and on which 4,000 of Queen Elizabeth's troops were once quartered.

Tears and Fears

Go together with many women who are approaching the first experience of maternity. The husband finds it hard perhaps to understand the changing moods of his wife. Indeed she cannot understand herself. She only knows that she is nervous, restless and anxious. A great change has come over her which she cannot understand or explain. Women do not always reflect that at this crisis they are living for two instead of one; that they need health for two and strength for two. The need for increased health and strength by the prospective mother is perfectly met and satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, promotes the appetite and gives refreshing sleep. It makes the baby's advent practically painless, and gives the mother strength to give her child.

"I have before written you of the great benefit both myself and family have received from your most excellent medicine," says Mrs. P. S. Peterson, of Welcome, Wis. "I have since tested its wonderful powers in the case of the coming of my fifth child. Took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' the first two months and three of 'Favorite Prescription' the last two months. It saved me so much terrible suffering that I consider it a heavenly blessing."

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

"DURING THE NEXT TERM,"

In his plea for recognition, renomination and re-election, Governor Beckham, unfortunately for himself and his eligibility, uses the following language—and the Democratic party ought to be grateful to the chief of the Splitters' party for the using:

"And I pledge you that if nominated and elected I shall devote the best labor of my life in continuing, during the NEXT TERM OF THIS HIGH OFFICE, the policy I have

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. After one or two years' use, the constant favorite family remedy. Sold by all druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, the joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. It has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." Miss Anna Derry, Sidney, Iowa.

heretofore followed," etc.

While the constitution of Kentucky, to which even the chief of the Splitters' party must eventually bow, prohibits more than one successive term to a governor of Kentucky, and while the governor of Kentucky elected by the people has ever sought to violate the intent and meaning of the prohibitive clause until the coming of Cripps Beckham, he has, himself, so plainly marked himself as ineligible that the wonder is his friends and advisers failed to stay his facile pen when indicting the fatal words.

No governor—so runs the seventh article of the constitution—shall be eligible for the four years succeeding the term for which he shall have been elected and it is immaterial whether that "term" of election be short or be long. True, the profoundly erudite constitutionalists of the Splitters' party will deny the proposition, and cite again and again that which they refer to as the "predecessor of Preston H. Leslie." But they will continue to be careful to refrain from citing that Preston H. Leslie was "elected" but once, and after that election took his rightful place among the ineligible for the four years succeeding the term for which he had been elected, his first seating in the executive chair being by virtue of his office as president pro tem of the senate.

But Governor Beckham has blazoned it to the people of Kentucky that once having been "elected" governor by the people, he is seeking a successive election in the very teeth of the constitutional prohibitions against his eligibility.

He has not only furnished to the Democratic party an apple of discord, but in his demand for an illegal method of nomination, and in his manifest ineligibility, he proposes to furnish to the Republicans of Kentucky the opportunity for which they have been waiting, and of which they will avail themselves to the utmost.

In leaning upon himself and upon the chiefs of the Splitters' party, Governor Beckham is leaning on a broken reed. The forceful personality that made him what he is, lies sleeping for all time in the cemetery at Frankfort.—Owensboro Messenger.

Editor Walker Sets Himself Right.

The Crittenden Press, one of the 13 papers set down as favoring the machine, has, like the Cadiz Record taken a second thought and now repudiates in toto the Rich Man's Method. It now calls for a primary, if one is to be held, that will give even the poorest young man a chance. We commend the following article to the thoughtful attention of the Ringsters:

"Primary elections, and conventions, for that matter, are held for the benefit of the party, for the convenience of the voter, rank and file. A group of individuals, embracing men of many avocations, hold to certain political tenets, believing that the application of these tenets in the administration of government brings the greatest good to the greatest number of people, themselves included. To accomplish this purpose they select the standard-bearers to be voted for, that there may be unity of action, to prevent the success of another group that holds to other tenets. Thus primaries or conventions become necessary for the good of the cause, and, as it is the people who rally to that cause, expecting to be benefited and giving rise to the necessity for primaries, they should bear the expenses. This, it seems to us, is common sense, common law and equity. The candidate, in the arranging and perfecting of these plans, is and should be merely an incident, and should not be merely an issue at this juncture. Now when every man in the party expects to be benefited, directly or indirectly, personally or as an integral part of the body politic, every man should be glad to exchange a little of his time, or its equivalent, for the value he hopes to receive. If his faith is not sufficient to move him in this direction, he is a mighty lukewarm adherent to the cause, or has peculiar ideas about the temporal fitness of things. These utterances may seem a little Utopian in these days of practical affairs—when any old thing is practical business if it brings or saves us dollars, but the application of them occasionally will be refreshing. The objections raised to collecting from the candidates a sum sufficient to pay the necessary expenses of the primary are well founded, while the claims of the advocates of the primary that conventions are too far from the people, incite asperity, and give opportunity to the wire puller, are equally as well grounded. If the Democratic state committee will call a free for all primary, and require the Democracy of each county to hold the election without cost to the candidates, there would be room enough for all. If the Democracy of any county does not think enough of the party to put in one day holding a primary, it should go out of commission.—Crittenden Press.

A backward glance a few years hence will reveal a great inland city on the hills and plains of Crittenden county, a city produced from the same causes that made Joplin.

The pick and the shovel, the drill and the hammer are the Aladdin lamp that will produce this seeming miracle.

Fifty Dollars Invested in Marion.

Now you realize a magnificent harvest. A handsome city lot 50x150 with broad streets and wide alleys, sure to treble in value and 1000 shares in the most promising mining venture in Crittenden county right in the city of Marion for fifty dollars. A home and dividends to maintain it for fifty dollars. Remember what fifty dollars would have done in Joplin, in Kansas City, in Chicago, and please note that $1,000 invested eighteen months ago has already produced over $90,000 of zinc ore that has been sold and paid for, right here in Marion.

Take the Opportunity

While it lasts. It won't last long. Ask anybody you happen to know in Marion about it, about the Reed farm and its great outcroppings of ore half a mile from the Marion post-office. Fifty dollars pays for it all, a handsome lot and one thousand shares of stock in what may be the banner mine of this marvelous district. Write for application blanks.

STREET CAR CUSTOMS.

Etiquette of the Rail as Practiced in the City of Boston.

To a woman standing the other day in a Fourth Avenue car, incumbered with a satchel, a shawl strap and an umbrella, approached the conductor, imperiously demanding "fare." Whereupon, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, the woman calmly replied: "I will pay you if you will stop the car." "Say you're from Boston, I guess," remarked the conductor. To which the dame from the Hub proudly responded: "I certainly am." It is a fact that in Boston a conductor requiring a fare from a standing passenger must stop the car if requested to do so. This, of course, is a closed car, for on the open car five sitting passengers and no "standees" are allowed to each seat, with the curious exceptions that men may ride on the foot-boards, both sides of the car being open, and men and women may stand on the rear platform. It is really funny to hear New York women, who at home rail at the custom of having passengers stand between the seats, make their moon as car after car, each loaded with its quota of passengers, passes them on Boston streets. "No seats!" calls out the conductor, and no matter if the min-pours down or the rain pours down, minutes before train time fly, one must possess her soul in patience. When the car does stop the conductor will help her on probably. He will certainly assist her knowledge of local geography by calling out the names of every one of the streets passed. Often there are different named streets on opposite sides of the way. Then he will call out both. Some of the combinations are amusing, as when he sings out "Summer and Winter" or "Milk and Water," such being some of the names of Boston streets in juxtaposition. No transfers are given on the cars. But there are transfer stations. If a woman has occasion to pass one of these she may shop a bit, as New York women do, at transfer points, but otherwise she must go straight through. She will probably find half a dozen ways to go home in the numerous car lines winding through the city. The routes of street car travel in Boston are curious. You take a car on the street level corner of the basement. There are two of them—the smaller, or family, kitchen, and the larger one, where the state dinners are prepared. When Mrs. Harrison came in as mistress of the white house, says the Woman's Home Companion, these rooms were in a deplorable condition—the walls were dark, the floors were sunken, and the place was simply in the possession of rats and mice. She tried every known expedient to get rid of the pests, but without avail. Then she had all the flooring in both kitchens and laundries taken out, the walls scraped, and even the space above the ceilings cleaned. The floors were replaced with cement ones, the walls wainscoted with white brick tiling, and the remainder newly plastered. This heroic treatment did away with the rodents, and left the rooms delightfully light and airy, as they are to-day.

CASE OF LOCKJAW CURED.

New Method of Administering Antitoxin a Triumph of Medicine.

Of unusual interest, says the New York Sun, is the report from the Harlem hospital that a patient of that institution, a boy seven years old, who came there suffering from lockjaw, has been cured. The secret of the cure, as it appears, lies in the fact that the tetanus antitoxin was injected, not in those parts of the body where subcutaneous injections are commonly made, but directly into the spinal column—a method of treatment which proved successful, also, in the case of another patient of the same hospital last summer.

It is scarcely more than a year ago that tetanus became known generally as a germ disease, that is, one which is curable by the administration of a proper serum. Then came the difficulty of finding such a serum. In January last, the doctors at the St. Francis hospital, in Trenton, announced that they had hit upon the desired remedy, and in proof of their assertion they called attention to the case of a victim of lockjaw in its worst form who had been restored to health after having received four injections of the new serum. Naturally, therefore, this hospital in Trenton was looked upon as sort of a Mecca for lockjaw sufferers from that time on. The physicians at the Harlem hospital declare that the new method of administering the serum practically solves the mystery of lockjaw, a scourge much greater in fact than the general public imagine.

THE THREE WAYS.

"Business Is Pleasure" Better Than "Business Before Pleasure."

"There's some folks," said Uncle Zeph, as he leaned over the gate, "that hev for a motto: 'Pleasure before business.' I'm not denyin' it, but there's some fun in that kind of thing—at the beginnin'. Trouble is, the fun never keeps up long, for that matter comes up agin in the hard facts of life, somethin' got to give way—and it isn't g'nally the facts. Life Belfon found that out—poor Life!—there ain't much pleasure in the almshouse, where he ended up."

"Then there wuz Si Allen, that said: 'Business before pleasure.' Si wuz a good, hard, hopeless kind of worker. He said he never expected to have fun in this world; he hedn't time. 'Twuz all work 'nd no play for Si,' he gwed old 'nd wrinkled before his time, 'nd kept ploddin' on, with a grievance agin life. Si wuz faithful 'nd conscientious,' 'nd he never shirked, but he jist hated his work, for all that. He felt like 'twuz a wall, standin' between him 'nd all the happiness he might hev had. That wuz Si's way, 'nd 'twuz much better than bein' in the almshouse, to my thinkin'."

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S KITCHEN.

There Are Really Two, One for Preparation of State Dinners.

Since Mrs. Lincoln's regime the kitchens of the white house have remained in the northeast corner of the basement. There are two of them—the smaller, or family, kitchen, and the larger one, where the state dinners are prepared. When Mrs. Harrison came in as mistress of the white house, says the Woman's Home Companion, these rooms were in a deplorable condition—the walls were dark, the floors were sunken, and the place was simply in the possession of rats and mice. She tried every known expedient to get rid of the pests, but without avail. Then she had all the flooring in both kitchens and laundries taken out, the walls scraped, and even the space above the ceilings cleaned. The floors were replaced with cement ones, the walls wainscoted with white brick tiling, and the remainder newly plastered. This heroic treatment did away with the rodents, and left the rooms delightfully light and airy, as they are to-day.

On the east side of the large kitchen, in place of the mantel and fireplace of the original one, there is now an up-to-date hooded range extending almost the width of the room. Across from it are the dish-washing sinks, connected with the hot and cold-water pipes. From the center of the ceiling hangs a great circular hoop bristling with books, which are filled with shining brass pots and kettles. On the west side of the apartment are the tall cupboards resting on the floor and meal bins, while in its center is the long kitchen table.

Testing a Baby's Mind.

In an experiment whose purpose was to trace the stages of development of a baby's mind the infant was played before a mirror daily. During the earliest stages of the test he simply looked at his reflection as birds do. He next showed fear of it, so many of the higher animals. He then grasped at it with his hands, as cats strike at reflections with their paws. Later he looked behind the glass to find the object, as cats and monkeys have been known to do. But on the 20th day of his life he deliberately turned the glass at different angles to obtain repeated reflections, an intelligence not possessed by any animal other than man.

VOTING CONTEST.

Elegant Prize to be Given to the Most Popular Lady in Christian County.

To Be Determined by a Vote of Kentuckian Subscribers.

A VOTING contest was begun August 29, for six months, to determine by popular vote the most popular lady in Christian County. To the lady receiving the highest number of votes, we will present an elegant set of bedroom furniture, now on exhibition at Pyle & Barnett's. It is of quartered oak, of the finest make and latest style, and is worth $110. The contest will close at 12 o'clock, noon, Thursday, March 4th, 1903. The plan will be as follows: Every subscriber to the Kentuckian who pays back dues of cash in advance will be entitled to cast one vote for each five cents paid. That is to say, a subscriber who pays $2.00 will have 40 votes, one who pays $1.00 will have 20 votes and so on for any amount large or small. In every paper published there will be a coupon and these coupons when cut out and brought or sent to the office will represent each one vote. A subscriber will also have the privilege of gathering up coupons clipped by friends from their papers and voting them one at a time, or by the hundred if preferred. One will also have the privilege of paying papers at the office at five cents each and voting the coupons cut from them.

The coupon ballots will be deposited in a ballot box with two keys. One of these keys will be held by County Judge W. T. Fowler and the other by Mayor Jouett Henry. The box will be opened not oftener than once a week, all ballots then in it taken out, counted and certified to, sealed up in an envelope and replaced in the ballot box. The envelope will contain a statement of the votes in it, so that its contents will not need to be counted again until the official count at the close of the contest. The last week of the contest the ballots may be deposited without showing them, so that the close of the contest may be secret and exciting to the end.

SECRET OF BIRD SOARING.

A Naturalist Who Thinks He Has Found
It Inside the Quills.

What is the motive power of a quiescent bird that moves it through air resistance and keeps its heavy body from falling? We are absolutely baffled when confronted with the problem of a soaring bird. It does not move its wings when it has once got well started; its moving parts seem to be of use merely to get it off to some unknown dead center; it has infinite capacity for taking advantage of balance, and all this is done while violating every known mechanical law, holding up a heavy body in the air, and overturning strong atmospheric resistances at a rapid rate without discernible expenditure of energy.

Yet, says Chambers' Journal, weight is absolutely necessary for flight, and the relative area of wing expansion diminishes as the weight of the bird increases. For example, a gnat, which possesses a very light, fairy-like body, has about eleven times the wing area of a swallow in proportion to the weight of each. I have been trying to discover the exact structure of a bird's surface which enables it to get the soaring force from the air pressure under its wings for the past fifteen years. The task seemed hopeless until accident settled the case. I had located in the foothills of the East Ten mountains of Colorado, in the dry air of that region, to prosecute my task, where the yellow-tailed hawks, that were admirable soaring birds, were abundant.

A precipitous cliff 1,000 feet high was near, from which I floated all sorts of surfaces, and year after year the quest went on. A furious forest fire had killed the air with smoke and ashes and the odor of the burning wood was in evidence for months. I had killed a large hawk and was examining its feathers, when a stain was detected on the sides of the quill between the spicules that was not before seen. A small magnifier gave the appearance of discoloration about the throat of a dust which was in a planing mill.

A microscope was at once procured, with an outfit of objectives from 60 to 100 diameters, and in an hour's time I knew more about bird flights than 25 years of study had given me. The discolorations extended along each spicule between the plates. The downy filaments filling the double wall structure of the wings were stained in the same unusual manner. This stain, when scraped off and examined, resembled soot from a stove-pipe, showing that the air had been going through the wing in an incessant stream, carrying the smoke and carbon particles of the fire with it. I had been the slave of preconceived ideas.

And this brings me to the device that soars the bird. What is a feather? It is an air engine, and the bird surfaces are made of them. They have been looked on as a light, flexible material for making an extended surface impervious to air that would readily fold upon itself, and their exquisite mechanical structure has been overlooked. They consist of a quill and two vanes made up of spicules, between which are the plates. The plates cross a channel about one-fourth of an inch wide, made by the spicules. There are about 1,000 of them to the inch, being practically innumerable, and they are located at the outer surface, filling about one-fifth part of the depth of the channel. They are about the twenty-thousandth part of an inch thick, as nearly as an amateur with a microscope could determine, so that nineteen-twentieths of the space of the channels is open to the passage of air. The mechanical service of the plates is obvious. The curve impinges against the air current through the feathers and drives the bird to the front. Pressure produced by the normal factor of weight is thus made to serve as the motive power of flight.

Weapon Registers.

In Russia when a weapon of any kind is purchased a permit must be secured from the local authorities. The name of the man who makes the purchase, with the number of the weapon, is recorded. If the purchaser ever wants to dispose of the weapon he must notify the authorities and cause the transfer to be recorded on the books of the firm which sold it.

Women Live Longer.

In Germany only 413 out of 1,000 males reach the age of 50 years, while more than 500 out of 1,000 females reach that age.

Tess—"The material in my new gown is very pretty, but it needs something to improve the shape of it." Joss—"Why not let some other girl wear it?"—Philadelphia Press.

Two Points of View.—"It was in the world of business. 'Who is he? What has he done?' they asked. Then again it was in the world of society. 'Who's his father?' they asked.—Chicago Post.

Mrs. Bjones—"Your husband, I hear, is quite versatile." Mrs. Brown-Smith—"Versatile is no name for it. Why, he can actually stay out late every night in the week and not give the same excuse twice."—Philadelphia Record.

Liable to Bite.—"Oh, George!" exclaimed the joyful mother, as she met him at the door. "Baby's got a tooth!" "I'm glad you mentioned it," replied the cautious husband. "I'll be very careful how I handle the little scamp."—Ohio State Journal.

Barnes—"Your nephew, I understand, has got through college at last?" Shedd—"Yes; and what good did it do him? I don't believe he learned a thing the whole four years. Why, man, I doubt if he could repeat the college yell!"—Boston Transcript.

Telling Teller—"Sorry to say it, but there are no funds." Man at the Window—"Then you mean to say that check is good for nothing?" Paying Teller—"Oh, no, I wouldn't care to go as far as that! It might be of value to you as a memorial or keepsake; but it isn't what—er—you'd call negotiable, you know."—Boston Transcript.

"Didn't you say that it was going to rain to-day?" "I did," answered the weather prophet. "But there hasn't been a sign of moisture." "I am perfectly aware of that fact. All I could do was to offer the best opinion on the subject I could arrive at. If I could accurately foretell events, I should quit working for a salary and make a fortune in the stock market."—Washington Star.

Economy.

In the New York office of Pierpont Morgan there is a junior clerk, the son of a millionaire, who when not otherwise employed is engaged in slicing the flaps of envelopes which have been used. The backs are preserved in pads for scribbling paper. The mail of such a house is enormous and the saving effected in this way is not inconsiderable.
